Summary

A proud longhorn graduate, NY/PRC licensed attorney. I stumbled on Salesforce and become really good really fast and enjoy building cool things and customizing everything beyond the declarative method. I taught myself APEX, Visualforce Page and SOQL, and am systematically learning full-stack development .

And I also bake ridiculously tasty cookies.

Experience

Salesforce Consultant at   Derrington Building Studio

August 2016 - Present (3 months)

Designed and Built out an entire custom-tailored CRM based on Salesforce Professional Edition specifically designed for Architect firms.
   A project-based system integrated with bills, invoices, time entries and expenses all in one place, divided by phases and activities based specifically on how architect firms operate.
   A completely automated invoicing system built on demand integrated with accounting software.
   Built out a custom button for a time logging web app associated with custom object using APEX and VF Page - specifically catering to time entry needs of architects.
   Migrated the existing system over from Ajera and maintained Data consistency and security.

"I had the pleasure of working with Stella Wu at Legal Tech Ventures (LTV), where she served as Chief Technology Officer (CTO) and I served as Chief Operations Officer (COO). In this role, Stella was responsible for all technical and developmental initiatives. She coordinated teams of developers and engineers to build custom platforms on Salesforce.com and also architected her own solutions. Stella's performance and work output was nothing short of stellar. She managed scheduling to ensure her team's projects were always delivered on time. Her thorough understanding of company vision and the technical components of each project and platform—Salesforce.com, Formstack, HTML, etc.—ensured technical development end of LTV ran smoothly in spite of constant changes and evolution. The fact that Stella Wu was the youngest female CTO in Austin during her time at LTV is a testament to her skill. "
